A graph showing performance of various cryptographic primitives across different message lengths. The horizontal axis represents message length in bytes, while the vertical axis represents time in cycles. The primitives include asconxofv12, asconhashv12, xoodyakov1, and others. The source of the data is the NIST Lightweight Cryptography Standardization Project, which can be found at https://bench.crypt.to.